Pandemics can be a stressful time, especially when there is uncertainty regarding our physical and mental health, finances, the economy, our social lives and so much more. This uncertainty can elevate fear and anxiety levels. While we don't have much control of the current COVID-19 situation, we do have control over our mindset, which is the key to coping with our emotions during these trying times. Everyone reacts differently to stressful situations so we have added some resources below to help you and your loved ones manage stress, uncertainty, fear, and anxiety in a healthy way.

Fun Activities For Kids To Do During Winter Break!

Islam Imagined is a FREE platform for Muslim children of all ages to engage in educational Islamic activities using their creativity and imagination.

The different themes allow children to explore subjects such as design, technology, calligraphy, art, coding and much more!

Each activity outlines a mission, learning objectives, a list of items needed, instructions, and video clips to see the applications of the activity.
